“My Son,” He started, “I have chosen this time for you to write to the world all I have shown you in our times together. I want you to describe the wonders of Heaven that I have imprinted into your being. Because there is so much doubt and discontent in the world about Heaven and Hell, I am taking you to Hell once again, so no one can doubt your words, as you describe it in clarity.”

At once, I remembered the terror that shook my whole being the first time Jesus took me to Hell, and that if He had not been there I would have lost my mind.

Instantly, I was standing in front of the gates of Hell! The darkness that was inside came rolling out. There were all the insane cries of torture and pain, and demonic laughter so loud that I was almost overwhelmed. Jesus was right next to me, otherwise I would have gone insane myself.

Jesus spoke words of comfort and peace into my heart as we stood there.

He continued, “Greg, I want you to write everything that you see and hear, and do not hold back anything, no matter how horrible it may seem to you.”

“It is important that people are made aware, and are confronted with the reality of Hell. They can deny it all they want, but I want them to see that it is all very real, and to know that it is their decision to go there, and that I never have and never will send anyone there.”

As we approached the beginnings of Hell, it was very apparent that it was in the bowels of the Earth, that it had been established there, and it was preparing for a large increase in the number of people to come there. The demons danced with glee, because those arriving were greatly deceived and had bought the lies of the Devil, that Hell was not a real place. Those arriving were so shocked that there was a real Hell and that they were there. It infuriated them greatly. They were cursing and blaspheming God for sending them there unnecessarily, and they refused to take any blame upon themselves.

Chapter Eight

The Gates of Hell

Slowly, as the gates opened, the cries of pain and suffering increased and intensified dramatically! I thought that they were bad before, yet they were far greater now. I could not even breathe, and my body was in great pain. The demons were jumping up and down and cursing Jesus, and telling Him that their time was not now, and that He had to leave them alone.

As the Lord walked me through the gates of Hell, I could not believe the terror that gripped my heart. I thought that the first time was so difficult, but now the fear was even more intense. Instantly, the demons surrounded me and started attacking me and telling me that I deserved to be there, that I had missed my opportunity, and that Jesus did not love me! I tried to answer these words, and all the blasphemy, but I could not even speak.

My thoughts were running wild and I could not control them. I found that my senses were greatly increased in every area. It was like the volume was turned up a thousand times. The smells were even more than I thought they could possibly be. The pain of the smallest thing on Earth was greatly expanded there. The suffering was so great, and the darkness was so much darker than I ever could have imagined it.

The smell was as I last had experienced it; intensely gross and sickening. It caused me to vomit, and my whole being convulsed with the pain of that sickening smell. The most overwhelming part was that it was forever! There was no escape from it—ever! I couldn't breathe, because it gagged me so much; yet it kept coming, and coming, and coming in waves into my nose and mouth. It was burning me inside and out, and I couldn't understand how it could....

driving to their destruction. No one ever, ever considered that in an instant they could be in Hell for eternity.

There is the shock of what has happened; it is all so quick. Everyone is stunned and cannot grasp the reality of where they are. I have heard it described as happening so fast that most don't even realize that they are dead. It is all stunning, and surreal, and so shocking. It is a whirlwind of experiences all at once.

Instantly, upon arrival in Hell, you know that you are there! Just as quickly, you are trying to do all you can to get out of Hell. At the same time, the demons are telling you, "It is all your fault!" Suddenly, you are faced with all the opportunities that God had given to you to go to Heaven. This is only the beginning of what is to come in the eternity that you face in Hell!
