

Preface

No matter what happens in life, the laws of God always apply.

There is the law of gravity; no matter how you feel about it, or whether you believe in it or not, it still works. The working of this law is a continual process in everyone's life. You cannot avoid it, and you cannot ignore it. It always works, and it always will.

The same is the case with the sower and the seed. There are certain laws about it that are always in our lives. It does not matter what we think about it, or whether or not we believe in it. This law always has, and always will be part of our life process.

As we look upon our lives, and their course, we always have questions. The most important one is Why? Why am I where I am today? Why did my life go in this direction? We generally ask this question in our later years, and as we often reflect upon our lives.

But let's consider how young people look at life. They too have many questions; What am I going to do?

Where am I going? What is my course in life? What am I going to become? What is my purpose?

The sower and the seed is a parable from the Bible that is the most foundational parable of all. If we understand this parable, then everything else will make sense. Even if we do not believe the Bible, this parable and its laws still apply in our lives.

Chapter 1

Man Is a Sower

We are made in Jehovah God's image. Therefore, like Jehovah, we are sowers of words. These words produce life and/or death on a daily basis. These words are also containers of either construction or destruction in their activity. All words have an affect in and upon the lives of those they are spoken into. They are productive, fruit-bearing seeds that will produce after themselves. They also are used by man to live by in a variety of ways. As we use them, we find (as we grow up), that they will develop what we have planted them to produce.

At an early stage, for example, boys and girls learn quickly that they can use words to get what they want for themselves. They also learn very quickly, that with words or actions they can control the behavior of adults. Right from the start, we are very selfish and we want what we want, when we want it. If we do not get our way, we will use some other stimulus to get it. Since, at an early age we cannot speak, we use actions to get the results we want.

To continue reading, you will need to purchase either a spiral-bound edition, or an electronic version of this book.

© 2008 – Centurion Publishing